Mr. McMullen: I am not sure if you remember, but I had the privilege of taking care of your sweet wife the day she went to surgery the first time. I checked on you all after surgery and you told me the news. Since that time I have considered you both "my" patients. Your wife was a dear, sweet, vibrant person whom I looked forward to seeing and caring for. Please know my thoughts and prayers are with you during this time of loss. May God richly bless and comfort you.Sincerely,Jerrrie Reynolds, RNGSMC Nurse - Outpatient Infusion##imported-begin##Jerrrie Reynolds##imported-end##

In the short time I've known the 2 of you, I have learned to love you both, but being the super sensitive person I am, I wanted to help relieve any pain you both were experiencing but didn't know how or what to do. You are both awesome Christians with the love for the Lord shining brightly in your lives. If I could just have some of what you have, I would be blessed. Annis let her light shine at all times no matter how she felt. Her days were tough but she allowed nothing to dim her light. She was just a walking miracle since she became ill. She loved the Lord and shared that with everyone. I am sorry she won't be here for us to enjoy but I'm relieved to know she is in better care now and without all the pain and discomfort she was experiencing. Our memories of Annis will keep a smile on our face and love in our heart. She was such a precious person and because of her love for the Lord, she glowed with a overwhelming warmth for others. Just continue to let your light shine and let the Lord lead you. You're going to do great because the Lord is going to be at your side 24/7. He won't forsake you and will be your strength. You're a wonderful person and can still be the strong witness that you've always been. That's what Annis would want. We're always here for you and you have a special place in our hearts. You're just considered part of the family. Keep singing for the Lord and Annis will be listening everytime. We love you.##imported-begin##Pam & Guy Sackett##imported-end##
