Hey Sis: I know you are happy, happier than you have been in a long while. I can see you now, hugging your Mama and your Daddy. Kissing all over little ole' Dinker; and I imagine after you kicked his butt and fussed for a second or two; you and Fred are standing on the edge of the clouds looking at all of us just a smiling. I know in my heart that you were ready, but to be honest Sis, we all thought we had more time..... Oh my Friend we are all going to miss you, there are so many of us that you have touched and that you have helped and that you have put back together. You are a true friend, and sister, and Mother and healer. You never knew a stranger, and you never let us down. You were my very first Friend when I moved here in 2001. You took in this poor old back water Alabamian and helped her become a Texan.... You invited me into your home and your life and we clicked... we had good times and bad times; we went through many a storm together, you became my Sister. When you loved some one it was for ever, not just a sometime thing, when you hurt, we hurt, you smiled we smiled, you cried so did we, and when you laughed you made us all laugh because it was real love you showed Every on. You never tried to be anything but you and I love that about you, You are my friend and always will be. I pray for comfort in the coming days, I pray for healing and for understanding; not for my self but for all who know you and were touched by you and are feeling the loss of you. You have a heart of gold, and a beautiful spirit, you shined from within, Thank you Sissy. Thank you for sharing your life here on earth with all of us. Thank you for sharing your family, your home your life with us. Welcome Home Sissy! You can rest easy now God has got it now. We will miss you and we will cherish our memories of you always. Gods' Newest Angel, Eva (Sissy ) Vannier. We never said good bye, always see you later.... I will see you later little Sister, Gods' speed on Angels wings. I love you and miss you like crazy. Love and hugs.....

What a shock to say the least. I know you are having a reunion party with your mom and dad and Fred. Your spirit will live on in your children and I pray for comfort to them and a peace that only our Lord can provide.
